Kenneth A. Murphy Joins The Tucker Law Group

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, March 28, 2022: After over 30 years of litigating cases as a partner at some of Philadelphia's most respected law firms, Kenneth A. Murphy has decided to retire from Big Law and join The Tucker Law Group, a prominent Black-owned boutique litigation firm founded by Joe H. Tucker, Jr. in 1993.

Murphy stated that "My plan always had been to off-ramp and do something different once my youngest child graduated high school, which she did last Spring. As I contemplated my options, I wanted to assure that my next chapter would be important, impactful, and meaningful to me. I have known Joe since we started practicing in the late 1980's when we worked together at The Barristers' Association of Philadelphia. Joining him at his growing complex litigation practice was my opportunity to contribute in a substantive way to the legacy of a well-respected Black-owned, Philadelphia institution and assist in its impact on the community at large. Years from now, I expect folks will speak of The Tucker Law Group the way many of us now speak of and remember the venerable Norris Schmidt law firm. Institutions like that offer the opportunity to represent underserved constituencies in ways that other firms cannot approach or have not been given the opportunity to do.”

Tucker, who had been “recruiting” Murphy to join his firm for over 20 years, stated: “Besides being one of my closest personal and professional friends, Ken is just a great person. I never thought it would happen, but the idea of him joining me to practice has been a dream of mine for more than 20 years. He is a brilliant and nationally well-regarded litigator whose presence commands respect from clients, lawyers, and judges alike. He will be an invaluable asset to our firm, our clients, and our community. I cannot overstate how excited I am about working alongside Ken.”

Before joining Tucker, Murphy was a partner at Faegre Drinker Biddle & Reath, where he was chair of the firm’s Products Liability and Mass Tort Practice Group and a former managing partner of the firm. His practice experience included the defense of product liability and other tort claims, including unfair trade practice and off-label promotion claims on behalf of pharmaceutical companies and other commercial entities. Murphy also has litigated and tried to verdict cases involving claims of professional malpractice, breach of contract, defamation, wrongful termination, premises liability, sexual harassment, and tortious interference with contract, in federal and state courts in New York, New Jersey, South Carolina and Pennsylvania. Murphy was also a partner at Saul Ewing, and Miller, Alfano and Raspanti.

Murphy earned his undergraduate degree from Duke University in 1986 and his law degree from Duke University School of Law in 1989. He is admitted to practice in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The Tucker Law Group is a premier litigation firm focused on providing the highest quality legal counsel to national and international clients. With offices in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and Marlton, New Jersey, we represent a diverse client base, ranging from large, Fortune 100 companies to individual litigants, in a wide range of civil and commercial matters. Founded over two decades ago, The Tucker Law Group is committed to achieving success for its clients. We have the skills, experience and resources needed to litigate the most challenging legal issues and secure victories when the stakes are at their highest. Our firm offers a vibrant practice with a large legal impact and a proven track record of success.

Our attorneys come from diverse legal backgrounds, including large and small firms, federal and state judicial clerkships, city solicitors, and district attorney's offices. TLG's attorneys are involved in various professional, pro bono and charitable activities, which include mentoring local students and participating in high school mock trial competitions. TLG attorneys are active members of the national, regional, and local bar associations that keep them connected with their peers and the profession. TLG's attorneys take their obligations to the bar seriously and proudly volunteer their time to serve in leadership roles in bar-related organizations. Non-legal related activities are additional ways that TLG's attorneys understand the community in which they practice. Attorneys at TLG have served as board members and volunteers for many non-profit organizations. These activities allow our attorneys to be good citizens in the community while at the same time understand the community in which they practice. At TLG, we value our attorneys' community involvement because we know that these experiences often prove to be valuable tools in examining the legal matters that TLG handles and in assessing how those cases will impact the community or, where necessary, how they might be perceived by a jury in the community. This kind of experiential intelligence cannot be taught in a classroom or read in a book; rather, it is the result of living fully and serving others.
